THIS WEEK'S MUST-HAVE, MUST-SEE, MUST-DO

► THE FESTIVAL

It's the year's only good excuse for going to Chelmsford – Virgin Mobile's V festival. Spread across two venues next weekend, it includes Duffy (above), Muse, Amy Winehouse, The Verve and Goldie Lookin' Chain, who we assumed had retired to a sheep farm years ago... vfestival.com

► THE EVENT

The aristos at Cheshire's Cholmondeley Castle aim to trump Goodwood's recent Festival Of Speed with this weekend's Pageant Of Power – not just amazing cars, but also speedboats and even a swarm of helicopters. pageantofpower.com

► THE JEANS

Get a bottom like Tom Cruise's or Brad Pitt's – or, at least, wear their jeans. Hudson jeans launch here this month. Visit hudsonjeans.co.uk

► THE FILM

We're not sure why George Lucas still needs more money – is he planning to actually build the Death Star? New film The Clone Wars is another chapter in the epic Star Wars saga – albeit animated. But at least it's got Yoda in it.

► THE GADGET

The first club where the DJ wanders among the dancers will be on August 22 at Back To Basics in Leeds, courtesy of the £500 Pacemaker, a mini MP3 deck with discs for mixing – watch out for drunken oiks grabbing it and putting on Kylie. Endorsed by dance OAPs Pete Tong and Judge Jules, it's available from pacemaker.net.

► THE SITE

What has Doogie Howser MD been up to lately? Answer: starring in revolutionary sci-fi comedy Dr Horrible. Written by Buffy scribe Joss Whedon, it is low-budget, web-only and hilarious. Watch it at DrHorrible.com.

► THE BOLTHOLE

When life is unbearable and the Special Brew's run out, you need a £4m holiday home somewhere like St Moritz. Easy way? Sign up to botiga.co.uk, the 'retreats club' with villas everywhere stress isn't. Don't call it timeshare. It's more expensive than that.
